

PAY TRIBUTE TO DEPARTED ELKS

Members of Local Organization Hold Annual Lodge of Sorrow.

PURPLE AND WHITE DRAPING

Memorial Roll Called Amid Impressive Ceremonies—Address by B. H. Roberts.

Elks who, during the year 1910, paused for the last time before the hour of 11 with bowed heads, were honored last night by the local lodge, No. 55, when the annual memorial service of Elksdom was held in the Salt Lake theater.

Elaborate preparations had been made by the committee in charge that the impressiveness of this memorial to the brothers who have gone on might be commensurate with the earnestness and sincerity of the greeting of Elks to Elks when death is the least thought of.

Orchestral rendition of the "Prelude of Deluge" ushered in the program and during this musical number, the curtain rose on a stage setting as appropriate as beautiful.

At the foot of the memorial roll, the names of the Elks who had passed on during the year 1910, were arranged in the center of the stage. In the center, sat Exalted Ruler W. G. Romney presiding, and grouped around him at the right, the members of the committee.

Leading Knight Dr. S. Ewing, Esteemed Loyal Knight V. A. Pettilyon and Esteemed Lecturing Knight D. W. Gibbs. In addition to these were Secretary A. W. Raybould, Treasurer W. H. Nightingale, Inner Guard W. L. Culmer and Chaplain M. M. Warner.

At the foot of the memorial roll, the names of the Elks who had passed on during the year 1910, were arranged in the center of the stage. In the center, sat Exalted Ruler W. G. Romney presiding, and grouped around him at the right, the members of the committee.

After the opening ode, Chaplain M. M. Warner delivered the invocation, "Benediction," by Godard, was rendered by the orchestra, and a quartet, consisting of Corinne Harris Hamer, Edna Dwyer, Fred C. Graham and J. Willard Squires, sang "The Lord is my Shepherd."

M. M. Kalgha was to have delivered an eulogy to departed Elks. In Mr. Kalgha's illness, the responsibility of the eulogy was transferred to the committee.

Following the solos, "The Old Sexton," by Mr. Squires, and "O Love Divine," by Mrs. Hamer, B. H. Roberts delivered the annual memorial address. Mr. Roberts said in part:

"Surely you are to be congratulated upon the selection of words you have made which represent the things for which your order stands: 'Benediction and Protection,' found in the title of your order, must naturally appeal to those who desire to seek fraternal relations with their fellows."

"Equally admirable is the symbol of your society as you interpret its equalities. Quick to hear the cry of distress, fleet of foot to relieve the unfortunate, timorous of doing wrong. These three words most frequently used in your burial service and these annual memorial services, 'charity, justice and brotherly love,' must commend themselves to all." Referring to the departed, he said:

"You propose to write their faults upon the sand, and their virtues upon tablets of love and memory. This reverses somewhat the great English poet's conception of men's deeds, for he said:

"The evil that men do lives after them, The good is oft interred with their bones."

"If I understand aright the spirit of your organization, it had its origin rather for the enjoyment of life than for the contemplation of death. And yet, death intrudes, an unbidden and unwelcome messenger, to give doleful summons to well-loved brothers."

After speaking of the object of life upon earth and of the mission of the soul of man, Mr. Roberts continued:

"I hold that we have a right to be optimistic in our views of man's earthly life, difficulties notwithstanding, and believe it would not be over difficult to persuade men not Christians that there is something in the union formed between man's spirit and physical body that is worth preserving."

"The poor, whom we are said to have always with us," said the speaker, "are may this be our organization, and they do; but we and the world need them more than they need us; for it is through these that the highest virtues and the noblest actions are kept active. He who gives to the poor is but lending unto the Lord. The brotherhood of man is the central object and keystone of your organization."

In conclusion, Miss Dwyer sang "Give Aims of Thy Good to the World," and the quartet, "Gently, O Lord, O Gently Lead Us." Officers of the lodge performed the closing ceremonies and the entire company, the defendant, hauled a car of rock past the spot where he

MOTION TO QUASH IS OVERRULED

Judge Ritchie Holds Status of Walker Contempt Case Is Merely One of Inquiry.

TO APPEAR AND SHOW CAUSE

Proceedings Against Mrs. Althea Walker, Margaret Walker Smoot and Clarence Walker to Continue.

Mrs. Althea Walker's motion in the Third district court for the quashing of an order issued from the court citing her, with Margaret Walker Smoot and Clarence Walker, to appear and show cause why they should not be punished for contempt for leaving the state while an order from the court was in effect commanding them to appear and testify relative to the disposition of certain articles of the estate of David F. Walker, Sr., was overruled by Judge Ritchie this morning.

The motion for the quashing of the order was argued before Judge Ritchie on Friday of last week. The grounds upon which the defense based its argument was that a case was pending in the federal court at the same time dealing with the same subject matter, and that an order in that court for them to appear and show cause why they should not be punished for contempt is also in effect from the federal court.

Holding the status of the case in the district court at present to be merely one of inquiry as to the possession of certain articles of the estate, Judge Ritchie says: "There is no reason why the inquiry sought in this proceeding should not proceed, so far as anything appears with relation to the matters in litigation in the federal court. This, as yet, is only an inquiry as to whether assets exist and whether certain persons have them. It is as the result of that inquiry, it appears that any of the property in question is in custodia legis in the federal court, that the inquiry or constructively, full faith and credit will be given to the judgment, decrees, or proceedings in that court showing that fact."

The point was raised by the defense that the order appointing David F. Walker, Jr., as special administrator, was illegal. This appointment was attacked from another side by the defense in the district court and the revocation of the appointment was prayed for and the appointment was annulled. Judge Ritchie, relative to this point, the court says: "The facts stated, which are alleged to show that the appointment of the special administrator is null and void, show in any event, nothing more than an irregularity and cannot be considered in a collateral attack on the appointment."

PROCEEDINGS TO CONTINUE. "However," continues the opinion, "sufficient facts appeared in the petition for the appointment of a special administrator and in the proceedings leading up to the appointment, to warrant the court under section 813 of the compiled laws, in appointing a competent person as special administrator. The court acted accordingly and the judgment then rendered has since been amply justified by the conduct of the parties cited."

The court must hold that the showing made in answer to the order to show cause is insufficient and it is so adjudged and that the proceedings continue against Althea Walker, Margaret Walker Smoot, and Clarence Walker in accordance with the views here expressed and under the provisions of the law here applicable."

MRS. MOORE KNOWN HERE. "Woman in the Case" in Criminal Trial in Vincennes.

The trial at Vincennes, Ind., of Menlo E. Moore, a theatrical man, for the alleged murder of Charles Edward Gibson, is attracting local interest. In many respects, it parallels the Thaw case and the woman concerned is Mrs. Moore who before marriage was Miss Arina V. Padgett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold J. Padgett who lived here several years ago before taking up their present residence at Washington, Ind.

Mr. Padgett lived here about five years beginning in 1895, and the older Padgett was a well known criminal lawyer. The family, however, known so long in the city, and Mrs. Moore was vitally concerned in the trial, was extremely popular and her attractiveness made her a social favorite.
